Cherbourg Battle In Full Fury

"PORT MAY FALL QUICKLY"

THE BATTLE FOR CHERBOURG HAS BEGUN. AMERICAN TROOPS HAVE ENTERED THE OUTER RING OF THE TRIPLE DEFENCE-BELT GIRDLING THE CITY, AND FORWARD ELEMENTS WERE LAST NIGHT REPORTED AT ST. MARTIN, ONLY FOUR MILES TO THE SOUTH-WEST.

A Reuter message from the front late last night said that the battle was under way with full fury, and the city was considered likely to fall soon.

The Allies are moving north, on a practically continuous 20 miles' front. Most progress has been made in the centre, where the ancient town of Valognes, at the heart of the road network in the northern end of the peninsula, fell to the Americans before noon yesterday.

Everywhere the elements of five German divisions north of the Allied line are in retreat.

According to a Reuter message from New York this morning, an N.B.C. broadcast from London said that American troops were within two miles of the Cherbourg city limits, and the fall of the town appeared to be imminent.

Land, Sea and Air Attacks

American forces have captured Vasterville, 12 miles from Cap de La Hague, and have reached Grenerville, it was announced this morning.

American forces, striking lightning blows at the crumbling German resistance in the northern part of the peninsula, are closing a ring of steel round the fortress of Cherbourg, according to Robert Reuben, Reuter's special correspondent.

The previously strong resistance on all fronts appears to have weakened, and little difficulty was encountered in yesterday's rapid marches. An advance of as much as 14 miles was made at one point.

American troops captured Valognes and swept a mile beyond the town at noon yesterday, as the Germans fell back on the inner perimeter of Cherbourg's defences, United States Headquarters stated. Valognes is 12 miles south-east of Cherbourg, with which it is linked by Highway 13.

The Germans fell back from Valognes without attempting a major stand. Simultaneously other American troops have advanced to St. Martin, only four miles from Cherbourg, in the deepest penetration yet into the Germans' peninsular stronghold.

William Stringer, Reuter's Special Correspondent, says that the Germans have been destroying Cherbourg for days.

The threat to Cherbourg is sharpening hourly, says Doon Campbell, another Reuter Correspondent. There are indications that the Germans are falling back fast, he adds. The German withdrawal towards Cherbourg suggests a determined attempt to concentrate forces immediately outside and inside the town for the final battle, instead of dissinating already reduced forces on the defensive perimeter.

The German garrison of the former trans-Atlantic city-port has received orders to "fight to the last man." According to a "last minute report" broadcast last night by Rennes radio, the defenders are planning a long-drawn-out action to deny the Allies possession of a big seaport as long as possible.

The German positions are being blasted from land, sea and air, the radio said. Heavy naval guns shelled Cherbourg all day yesterday.

Marshal Rundstedt's headquarters described the Allied attack as an all-out drive for the port, and forecast fresh Allied landings near the Cherbourg tip "within the next few hours."

There are three definite areas of fortification. The first is the coastal defence—a ring of gun emplacements, probably facing north. A few miles inland there is an inner defence zone, and about six miles from the town there is the outer defence zone, running in a great semi-circle from the sea to the sea.

The port is defended by seven forts, possibly the main centres of the big coastal guns, which are capable of firing to sea for a distance of fifteen miles with considerable accuracy.

The force which took Valognes—where, nineteen years before his invasion of England, William the Conqueror narrowly escaped death at the hands of his barons—pressed on and was soon a mile beyond the town.

Near the east coast, the bitterly-disputed ruins of Montebourg have been occupied, and the Germans falling back to the north are said to have destroyed the bridges over the Filbec River after them.

Air reconnaissance has shown that Cherbourg has been badly damaged by air raids.

Preparing For Final Stand

French civilians returning from the front state that Cherbourg is being cleared by the German authorities and demolished preparatory to the final stand. Germans have been blowing up port facilities for at least three days. They have wrecked cranes and docks, and sunk ships in harbours over an area of 4,200 square acres.

The Germans ordered all Frenchmen to be evacuated from the city by last Saturday night, and women by Sunday, the civilians added. They said, however, that many were disobeying these orders and remaining.

If the German defenders are split or compressed by the advancing American forces, Cherbourg may fall much more quickly than expected, says F. B. McGarry, P.A. correspondent.

It is estimated that some 35,000 Germans still are in the peninsula.

The German Command has banned civilian road traffic on the roads leading out of Paris towards the Normandy battle areas, said Paris radio last night.

Returned For Trial in Kerry Murder Case

After hearing over 100 witnesses, District Justice Johnston, at Waterville yesterday, returned for trial to the Central Criminal Court, Thomas P O'Shea, Ardkeragh, Waterville, and John Brennan Tour, Waterville, on a charge of the murder of Michael P. O'Sullivan, Ardkeragh, on January 12th, 1943.

Invasion Needs Were Decided By Girls

MR. G. C. TURNER, a British Ministry of Supply Inspector, told a Bristol audience yesterday that 30 girls, specially selected for their mathematical ability, were responsible for the whole of the work involved in calculating what war materials would be needed for the invasion.

FIERCE FIGHTING REPORTED

A GERMAN High Command report broadcast last night said: "Fierce fighting has developed with the German protecting screen, which is covering the deployment of our main forces in the enlarged fortifications area of Cherbourg."

Martin Hallensleben, a military correspondent of the German News Agency, said:—

"Why was the American breakthrough to the west of the Cherbourg peninsula and their advance against Cherbourg not prevented by the German High Command? No doubt, it has not been made easy for the Germans to put their plans into action. However, the Command is stubbornly sticking to them, and will not sway from its determination to fix the date and the place of the battle of its own free will.

"The key to the position is to be looked for somewhere in the area of St. Lo. Events there will have their repercussions on the fighting to the north-west, and will finally decide whether the actions on the Cherbourg peninsula will substantially influence the over-all situation."—(Reuter.)

Karl Praegner, chief military correspondent of the German News Agency, wrote last night:—"Sixteen enemy divisions are now poised in North Africa for an attack against the south coast of France."

"Considerable concentrations of forces behind the whole front of the Second British Army indicate the possibility of a major attack in the near future," said Capt. Sertorius, German commentator.—(Reuter.)

Transport Bill Again Opposed In the Dail

ON the second stage of the Transport Bill, which was reintroduced in the Dail yesterday, Mr. LEMASS, Minister for Industry and Commerce, said that the only change made was that the dates on which the measure was to come into effect had been changed from July 1st, 1944, to January 1st, 1945. It was desirable that services across the Border should not be interfered with, but if these were affected by legislation elsewhere it might be necessary to introduce further legislation here.

By the reorganisation of the G.S.R. and the Dublin Transport Co., he continued, they believed that they were providing the best type of transport possible. It would give them the maximum freedom in commercial operations by relieving transport from the restrictions, which, in the past, were considered necessary in the public interest.

The new company should be established in a stronger financial position than it would ever be possible for the G.S.R. to attain.

A BURDEN

General MULCAHY (F.G.) said his party opposed the second reading of the bill not solely on the ground that they considered the Minister was rushing it. He agreed that the economic development of the country required cheap, efficient transport, but the bill would not to provide it. The financial propositions in the bill would "hang a weight around the transport system," which would not provide the services essential for the country. "What we are doing here is hanging an unnecessary rate of interest around all constructive effort in this country, if we maintain the position in this bill of giving debenture holders 3 per cent."

General Mulcahy said that it was not for them to say what should be given by way of compensation to stockholders, but he thought that the proposed compensation was more than generous, and it should be fixed by a commission specially set up for that purpose.

There should be a clear dividing line between private enterprise, on the one hand, and Government control on the other. They were heading for disaster, if the clear line was not drawn. Such a scheme as the proposed one, under which private enterprise would own the property, but would not be allowed to run it, had been described as "bastard socialism." The people who were to run the new company were the people who had let it sink to what it had sunk to.

The scheme was a fantastic one.

The Dail adjourned until this morning.

Water Shortage in Dublin Unlikely

BY AN IRISH TIMES REPRESENTATIVE

While it has not yet been possible to complete the electricity section of the Poulaphouca undertaking, residents in Dublin City, its suburbs and outlying villages, are enjoying the benefits of the Corporation's part of the enterprise. Upwards of six millions of gallons of water now pass daily from the filtering-beds at Ballymore Eustace, through more than 20 miles of tunnels and pipes, to the city's distributing system.

While certain sections of the work yet have to be completed the Corporation's engineers have adopted certain temporary expedients which ensure the citizens against risks of anything like the water famine that now threatens other areas. Had such measures not been adopted resort to drastic rationing methods would have been necessary, as the combined resources of Roundwood and Bohernabreena reservoirs already approach points of abnormal exhaustion.

RUSSIANS TAKE VIBORG

RUSSIAN forces yesterday captured the town and fortress of Viborg, key to Finland's industrial south, and the Baltic ports, stated an Order of the Day from Marshal Stalin to Marshal Govorov, broadcast last night from Moscow.

Viborg was abandoned by the Finns, according to a Reuter cable from New York.

Viborg, with a normal population of 84,000, is about 75 miles north-west of Leningrad. The outer harbour of Transund (Uuras), which lies nine miles from Viborg, is normally Finland's principal timber exporting centre. Viborg, which, in the 1940 Russo-Finnish war, was the main bastion of the Mannerheim Line defences, is about 125 miles N.E. of Helsinki, the Finnish capital.

BRINK OF DEFEAT

The fall of Viborg literally brings Finland to the brink of defeat, cables Duncan Hooper, Reuter's Staff Correspondent in Moscow.

With their main defences now overthrown, the Finns, states this correspondent, are trying to drag out the battle by improvising miniature "Mannerheim Lines" on the small isthmuses between the lakes, but the Russians are countering these tactics by keeping the Finns constantly engaged and denying them time to throw up new fortifications. Other mobile forces are playing havoc behind the Finnish front line, cutting their communications and blowing up ammunition and supply dumps.

The Red Army has, since the beginning of this offensive, averaged an advance of six miles over one of the roughest terrains in Europe, and against the renovated Mannerheim Line. At this rate, the Russians should be on the outskirts of Helsinki, the Finnish capital, within three weeks.

Berlin yesterday conceded the serious proportions of the Soviet offensive against the Finns. The commentator, Colonel von Hammer, said last night that fresh Soviet tank forces have been hurled into the battle, and that fighting is now assuming almost unprecedented violence. "At some points," he said, "the Finns are being crushed by overwhelming superiority in both men and material."

There were no changes on other sectors of the front.

Eighth Army Sweeps on Beyond Perugia

EIGHTH Army forces, after entering Perugia, are thrusting north on either side in the direction of Arezzo and Florence, in spite of heavy rains and determined resistance in key areas, Reuter's Special Correspondent at Allied Headquarters in Italy stated last night.

Prisoners taken by the Fifth and Eighth Armies since the offensive began on May 12 now number approximately 27,000.

When strong Eighth Army detachments yesterday entered Perugia from the south and east they met with sporadic but stubborn, resistance. Advance elements, sweeping past the city in an outflanking movement, cut the roads running westwards. East of Perugia vigorous armed reconnaissance met with little opposition. The Germans are withdrawing through mountainous country.

Indian troops, driving beyond the city, have captured the villages of Ripa and Civitella d'Arno, to the north-east. They repulsed a German counter-attack, inflicting heavy casualties and taking prisoners. Nine miles west of Perugia a British column has reached the southern shore of Lake Trasimene. They are nearing the road running along the western shore, which comes up from Orvieto to join the Perugia-Arezzo-Florence road.

The two-day battle for the possession of Citta Della Pieve, nine miles south of the lake, is over. The strong resistance there has subsided, and Eighth Army Forces have by-passed the town, continuing north-west towards San Litardo.

Allied troops in the Adriatic sector have crossed the Tronto, and have reached the Tessino River.

It was announced yesterday that operations on Elba are officially concluded, and that the island is completely in Allied hands. The German News Agency stated that the garrison had returned to the mainland for other operations.

No "Inspired" Tips in Buying of G.S.R. Stocks

THE principal witnesses examined at yesterday's sitting of the Railway Stocks Tribunal in Dublin were Mr. M. W. O'Reilly, Managing Director of the New Ireland Assurance Company, and Mr. James O'Mara, Chairman of the Dundalk Packing Company and Donnellys, Ltd., Dublin. They gave evidence about the purchase of Great Southern Railways stock last year, and both denied that the purchases were made as a result of any tip or Inspired information.

Mr. H. G. Boardman, Secretary, G.S.R., produced a statement showing the proportion of the various stocks of the company not dealt with in any way in the material period in 1943.

In the course of his examination, Mr. James O'Mara was asked by Judge Davitt if, in August, 1943, he gave an order for the purchase of £10,000 nominal of G.S.R. stock. The witness said that he did not remember the transaction, but he knew that it resolved into the purchase of £77 worth of stock.

Judge Davitt—Was it debenture? No, ordinary stock.

How did you come to give this particular order?—My position was that owing to trade—pigs not coming in—I had a lot of money and I had no use for it. I invested a good deal of it in Irish manufacturing concerns and Irish industrial concerns.

The witness handed in a list to the Tribunal, which included between ten and twenty companies.

Judge Davitt — Was not the original order slightly startling—10,000 Ordinary Shares?—The stockbroker could not have got 10,000, and that would be only worth about £1,000. It would be found in the list he had handed in. There were investments of more than £1,000.

THE PROSPECTS

Judge Davitt—How did you come to select the Ordinary Shares at that particular time?—I speak from memory. I got a notice that the rates were being raised. The ordinary stock of the company had been reduced, and, therefore, it could not have been over-capitalised, and then something happened that made me think that the company was in a privileged condition as regards the roads, and consequently the prospects of the company were better.

Chairman (Mr. Justice Overend)—What was the something that happened?—I don't remember what the something was. I know it was in relation to the delivery of pigs. No carrier could have brought pigs, and the something that happened was that a carrier could only move his own goods. I thought the company was in a privileged condition as regards the roads. Therefore, it seemed reasonable to buy £1,000 worth of G.S.R. stock.

Chairman—Had you a preferential rate from the company?—I could not tell.

Could you tell did you pay the ordinary rate?—We had some preferential rate.

Again replying to Judge Davitt, the witness said that he did not discuss the matter with anybody. Nobody offered him any tips and he did not take tips. He did not hear any rumours about the company. He purchased the Ordinary shares at £12 and sold them at £20, which showed he was an entirely innocent man.

Questioned by Mr. E. O'Mahony for the Stockholders' Association, the witness said that he never knew of a certainty on the Stock Exchange, and he got no hints about the improved position of the railways. He had made a profit of £20 sent from heaven and he took it.

Protest Against Co. Council Abolition

REFERRING to the abolition of the Kerry and Roscommon County Councils in the Dail yesterday, Mr. P. COGAN (Clann na Talmhan) expressed surprise that the Minister for Local Government and Public Health, Mr. Sean MacEntee, had singled out "for persecution and attack" the two Councils on which the Farmers' Party had a majority. He termed the Minister' action "tyrannical and unjustifiable."

Mr. COGAN said that the "Field Marshal" Minister was talking through his would-be brass hat in saying that first-class roads were necessary for the defence of the country."

Replying, Mr. MacENTEE maintained that roads were an essential part of national communications. "I am not going to allow the question of roads to become a point of local party politics," he said. It would be better if roads were taken out of local politics altogether.

It was necessary for the preservation of the safety and security of the State that certain roads should be maintained. If any local authority refused to fulfil its obligations he was not going to put the ratepayers to the needless expense of a local inquiry, and he would use his powers, under Emergency Orders, to dissolve the Co. Council. He did not, he said, relish the prospect of having to abolish such bodies and appoint a commissioner, which would mean added responsibilities for him.

Mr. J. HUGHES (F.G.) said that it was an injustice to local authorities generally to threaten them just because one authority had misbehaved. If the Minister decided to dissolve a local authority he should make the reason clear to the public.

Air Armada Attacks P-Plane Bases

ONE of the targets of a great air armada which went out from Britain yesterday was the launching platforms of P-Planes in the Pas de Calais, states an official London message. A section of over 1,500 Flying Fortresses and Liberators, covered by a host of fighters, probably brought the total air fleet to over 3,000 aircraft.

Oil refineries and plants at Hamburg, Hanover, Magdeburg and Politz, a tank depôt at Konigsborn, and an aircraft factory in the Brunswick area, were also attacked. 66 German planes were destroyed, it is claimed, for the loss of 54 Allied aircraft.

Had the R.A.F. and U.S.A.A.F. not rained down many thousands of tons of bombs on the P-planes' launching sites during the past months it is possible that the Germans could have released their "robots" at the rate of 300 an hour, says a P.A. Air correspondent at British Headquarters. The small number sent indicates not only the extent to which the German plan has been frustrated, but the ability of counter measures to control the situation. Any damage that the P-planes have done in Southern England is, states this correspondent, of less importance than their effect in drawing off a number of fighters and bombers to deal with them, which would otherwise be in operations in support of the forces in France.

IDENTIFIED

Air crews out in yesterday's raid reported direct hits on a number of the installations. The cunningly hidden platforms were definitely identified.

The Germans put up great masses of anti-aircraft fire in an attempt to save the P-Plane sites. They even tried another secret weapon—a missile containing long metal strips, apparently designed to foul propellers. R.A.F. pilots say it was completely ineffective.

The Air Ministry News Service states that there was no fighter opposition. One pilot said:—"I saw bombs drop very close to the aiming point. They went off with a big burst of flame, which was followed by a small cloud of smoke. I saw other bombs bursting in the target area, and the bombing all the time we were there was concentrated."

"Robot" raiders were again sent over Southern England on Monday night and in daylight yesterday. In one place five Home Guards were killed and ten others injured at their posts.

One plane blew a house to bits and wrecked others, but nobody was killed. One of the injured said: "None of us heard it approaching until it fell."

Fighter pilots are taking a big toll of the "robot" planes, says London Headquarters. In one district they shot down some into the sea and six others which fell in a rural district.

The fighters dive on their prey, shooting at them from astern, and a short burst seems sufficient to send them down.

One pilot, describing his experience, said: "It was like chasing a ball of fire across the sky. I took off half an hour before midnight, and some minutes later sighted a ball of flame and sparks. It flashed by, and then I quickly turned and chased it. It was going pretty fast, but I caught up with it and opened fire from astern. At first there was no effect, so I closed in another hundred yards and gave another burst. Then I went closer still and pressed the button again. This time there was a terrific flash and explosion, and the thing fell down in a vertical dive into the sea. The whole show was over in three minutes."

GERMANT COMMENT

Lt.-General Dittmar, military commentator of the German radio, said yesterday: "We may certainly expect some results from the new weapon, but we have to realise that any weapon, however, effective, can only contribute to the decision; it can never bring about the decision itself. No doubt, the British and Americans will leave no stone unturned to counteract this weapon. But we are amazed that the British say our new weapon is not fair because it is not manned."

A great force of Allied bombers flew out over the Straits of Dover to France yesterday evening, according to a late London message. For an hour there was no pause in the great procession going out over the coast in the Folkestone district towards the Boulogne area and Cape Gris Nez and the Calais district.

"Fake" Ration Cards

COUNTERFEIT German food and clothing ration cards dropped by the Allied Air Forces over Germany have been an "outstanding success" as a weapon of economic warfare, official circles reported in Washington yesterday, according to a Staff Correspondent of Associated Press.

PERMITS TO TRAVEL RESUMED

THE Government has now decided that the issue of travel permits to Great Britain for employment, which were temporarily suspended in March, may be resumed on a restricted basis.

The following will not, however, be eligible for travel permits:—Persons who are in employment, or for whom employment exists in the country; persons who refuse to take employment or who lose it through circumstances within their control; people on the special register of agricultural and turf workers; men living in rural areas and in towns of 5,000 population or less; people under 22 years of age, except men discharged from the defence forces on medical grounds; and persons whose services are regarded as essential in this country because of special experience or qualifications.

These restrictions will not apply normally to clergymen, doctors, engineers and accountants, or to "migratory labourers."

Places with a population exceeding 5,000 are Dublin, Cork, Limerick, Waterford, Clonmel, Drogheda, Dun Laoghaire, Galway, Kilkenny, Sligo, Wexford, Athlone, Ballina, Ballinasloe, Bray, Carlow, Cobh, Dundalk, Dungarvan, Ennis, Enniscorthy, Killarney, New Ross, Thurles, Tipperary, Tralee, Tullamore, Youghal and Mullingar.

No information was available last night as to whether the British Government had lifted the ban on cross-Channel traffic imposed in March. It is unlikely, however, that the Eire Government would issue permits unless there was an understanding that they would be honoured.

PLANS TO FIGHT "T.B." INADEQUATE

Use of Derelict Mansions Proposed

DURING the debate on the estimate for the Department of Local Government and Public Health in the Dail yesterday, Mr. W. Norton (Lab.) said it had been found that T.B. patients in Dublin had to share beds with other members of their families. The State, he added, was "tinkering with the whole problem."

The present methods of the Department to combat T.B., Mr. NORTON continued, were hopelessly inadequate. Sanatoria were overcrowded, and their waiting lists were so long that patients would not get admission into some of them for many months. Patients who were in the early stages of the disease were forced to wait in their homes, where they infected other persons, and where their condition became worse daily. Beds and bedclothing ought to be supplied to such families.

USE OF MANSIONS

The Department, Mr. Norton suggested, should be given power, pending the erection of sanatoria, to use old mansions in the country to house patients.

Ald. A. BYRNE said there had been a complete failure to provide proper treatment for tuberculosis patients in Dublin. Waiting lists were so long that sufferers might die before receiving treatment.

"It is hard to go on when one sees the Parliamentary Secretary laughing," said Ald. Byrne, "but this is no laughing matter. If the Parliamentary Secretary met some of the mothers and other people I meet he would not be sneering."

The Lord Mayor of Dublin (Ald. M. O'SULLIVAN, Lab.) stated that tuberculosis treatment was being neglected, and that the waiting lists in all institutions were deplorable. The Minister should ensure that the victims would get food, rest and medical attention.

PROPAGANDA

There was still a reluctance to admit the existence of tuberculosis, Mr. M. RODDY (F.G.) stated, and, as a result, many cases were not discovered until the victim was far advanced and a danger to his fellows.

Alderman R. CORISH (Lab.) said that the increase in T.B. was due to poverty—and the Government had limited wages. People could not be expected to take sanatorium treatment if there was no provision for the people dependent on them.

Mr. W. F. O'DONNELL (Farmers) said he believed that the lack of good water in South Tipperary was responsible for the high rate of tuberculosis in that area—higher than anywhere else in Ireland.

Mr. E. COOGAN (F.G.) said that in Kilkenny there was a totally inadequate provision of sanatoria. The only accommodation there was the old militia barrack, which was virtually in the same condition as when the militia used it.

The Minister (Mr. SEAN MacENTEE), in his reply, speaking of tuberculosis, said he regretted the lack of adequate accommodation. It had been impossible to provide sanatoria because of the acute shortage of building materials. There was no possibility of supplying the required beds except at a very slow rate. New institutions recently provided produced 135 additional beds, and existing extensions would produce 135 more. Further provision of beds was contemplated.

Deputy Norton had suggested that derelict mansions should be adapted. An exhaustive survey had been made, but they had been disappointed beyond measure. The number suitable for the purpose was very small, and there were numerous difficulties as regards water supply, heating and other things. He was afraid that it would be necessary to wait until the war was over in order to obtain building supplies—and, therefore, the rate at which the deficiency in beds could be made up was going to be very slow.

Referring to housing, Alderman O'SULLIVAN said that no progress had been made, and now was the time to prepare schemes which would be ready when the emergency ended.

The Lord Mayor said that in Dublin alone 15,000 houses were needed. Thanks to the foresight of the Dublin Corporation and the Housing Department of the L.G.D. they were doing well in the difficult circumstances. The reconstruction of old Georgian houses was helpful.

Mr H. M. DOCKRELL (F.G.) said that there were certain fields in which the Government had made very little progress towards the solution of the housing problem. Why, he asked, had the operation of the Small Dwellings Act come to an end.

Mr. J. S. O'CONNOR (F.F.) said that the burden of house purchase loans should be taken off the local authority. A limit should be set to the interest charged on loans. The Minister should consider establishing a bureau to advise young people who were contemplating buying a house.

Mr. W. F. O'DONNELL (Farmers) complained of the state of the water supply in rural areas.

Mr. E. COOGAN (F.G.) advocated the opening up of a propaganda campaign directing attention to road dangers. He noticed that Naas road by-pass of 1,100 yards had cost £47,000, which worked out at £80,000 a mile; so that the £14,000,000 mentioned by the Minister would not go far.

THE MINISTER (Mr. MacEntee), replying, said that he was satisfied with the present administration. He could not see, for instance, that there was any added stigma in inquiring into a person's means who asked for a supplementary pension.

Suggestions had been made by deputies that the Central Fund should provide increased contributions for such things as mental hospital capitation grant, main roads, and housing grants. That, he said, was tantamount to asking the Government to transfer taxation from property to the individual.

Owing to the "extreme urgency" of providing accommodation at St. Bricin's Hospital for Army tuberculosis patients awaiting transfer to civilian sanatoria, the construction of the new wing to the hospital is being carried out mainly by Engineer Field Company personnel, who have received additional pay in respect of their trade qualifications.

Stating this in the Dail yesterday, the Minister for Defence told Mr. J. Larkin (Lab.) that such works were normally carried out by contract.

FLOWERING SHRUBS

BY G. O. SHERRARD

THERE are probably more shrubs in flower in June than in any other month of the year, with the possible exception of May. Four large families of shrubs alone supply our gardens with dozens of varieties this month—Philadelphus Deutzia, Diervilla and Escallonia—it is indeed difficult to imagine our gardens without representatives of all these groups in the shrubbery.

The genus Philadelphus, popularly known as Syringa or Mock Orange, provides us with a number of admirable shrubs, free flowering, deliciously scented and of easy culture. The smallest of the family is Philadelphus Microphyllus, a neat plant about 4ft. high, smothered in small, highly-scented flowers; a real garden treasure. Of the many hybrids raised by the French firm of Lemoine, of Nancy, all are so good that it is difficult to make a selection. My own choice inclines to Virginal, a semi-fouble; Belle Etoile, with a pink centre, and Girandole. If I had room for another I would plant Coupe d'Argent.

VARIETIES

Deutzias are almost as valuable as Philadelphus, but lack scent. The double forms are to be preferred to the single, as they retain their flowers longer. D. magnifica is a fine shrub, and D. crenata purpurea plena is valuable for its colour, the old D. gracilis is still worthy of inclusion in the planting list, and so is its pink variety, carminea. The deutzias will tolerate partial shade, and in such a position the buds get some protection from frost injury, to which they are rather liable.

The Diervillas have flowered with unusual profusion this year, and it is doubtful whether we have better pink flowered shrubs, excluding the rhododendron. But there are not only pink Diervillas; the dark red Eva Rathke is excellent, especially if placed next to a grey foliaged shrub such as Senecio Greyi, and there is a good white named Mont Blanc. Of the many pink varieties Conquete is worthy of special commendation.

The Escallonias have the merit of being evergreen as well as first class flowering shrubs. Those with small leaves, such as the Donard varieties and E. Langleyensis, are less effective as evergreens than the large-leaved kinds, such as C. F. Ball and Macrantha; on the other hand, they simply smother themselves in blossoms.

SLIDE ON THE PICK OF THE DERBY FIELD

BACKERS of favourites look like having a good time at the Curragh this afternoon, although in several cases it looks as though it will be a matter of having to lay the odds, for fields have cut up very disappointingly, which is only to be expected in view of existing conditions.

Despite the smallness of the Irish Derby field the race bears quite an open appearance. Greek Star

Bright Batting in College Park

THE match in aid of the Adelaide Hospital, between Dublin University Past and Present and N. H. Lambert's XI, concluded at College Park yesterday in a draw, and with runs coming at the rate of 100 per hour over the afternoon, there was plenty of brightness in the play.

With F. G. Connell, in good form, getting 85 (including 9 fours), without losing his wicket, N. H. Lambert's XI were enabled to declare at 124 on the exit of the fourth man.

Trinity laid around them lustily in their second innings, Haughton and Barnes, in particular, opening their shoulders to the bowling, and ran up 129 for 4 wickets in double quick time, at which point they declared.

Jeffares did some good work in Trinity's attack during the second knock of N. H. Lambert's XI, taking 3 for 18; but, although they had lost six men for 70, the visitors were only 25 runs behind their opponents' total at close of play.

ST. JAMES'S GATE OUT OF L.O.I. FOOTBALL

ST. JAMES'S GATE, first winners of the League of Ireland, in the season 1921-22, and Bohemians, were applicants for re-admission at last night's meeting of the Management Committee; the others were Brideville and Bray Unknowns. On a vote Bohemians received 6, Brideville 4, St. James's Gate 2, and Bray Unknowns 0.

By the decision one of the oldest clubs in Eire, St. James's Gate, goes out of League of Ireland football.

The League, as last season, will be confined to eight clubs.

The following are the officers for the coming season:—President, Mr. T. B. Aungier (re-elected); vice-president, Mr. J. Murray (Bohemians); hon. secretary, Mr. C. J. Dowling (re-elected); hon. treasurer, Mr. P. J. Casey (re-elected).

Consideration of the fixtures, etc., for the season was deferred to a special meeting to be held to-morrow week.

Shelbourne notified the League that the club proposed to play alternate matches at Shelbourne Park (Saturdays) and Glenmalure Park (Sundays).

WEXFORD'S RISE IN HURLING

By PAT'O.

THE defeat of Kilkenny hurlers by Wexford, at New Ross, was the biggest of many week-end championship surprises. It is true that Wexford were on the upgrade. Kilkenny's defeat by Antrim last year and their lucky win from Leix made it clear that the Nore hurlers had hit a lean patch. Yet, New Ross is a favourite pitch on the Kilkenny doorstep. The dominance of Nickie Rackard, at midfield proved the decisive factor, and Wexford's speed in attack brought winning goals. There is a possibility of Wexford being in both Leinster finals.

Dublin footballers at Croke Park treated spectators to one of the most striking recoveries of recent years. Backs were caught napping by Louth's sparkling attack. Eight points in four minutes was a startling football score, yet Dublin settled down to such solid constructive football that the teams were level at three-quarter-way.

The new Dublin talent, particularly Meagher, Lawlor, Maguire and O'Mahony, all shone. At full-back and full-forward Dublin were not so well served. It was the solidity of Falvey and the enterprise of Culhane that beat a smart Louth side. Dublin will go far.

Tipperary footballers, with fit and confident Army support, fairly shocked the Corkmen at Clonmel. Once more the 1943 Munster champions lacked polish, but it will be a good Southern final between Tipperary and Kerry. Mayo's form at Castlebar against a fancied young Galway side was nowhere expected. Roscommon, doing badly since their big success in 1943, have stern opposition in the West.

We are entering on Ulster's concentrated senior programme next week-end, when the outstanding hurling attraction is in Limerick, where Cork (three year champions) meet a dashing young Tipperary side, led by Willie O'Donnell. It is a bad year for the champions, and Cork must be at their best to hold Tipperary on a pitch that is traditionally unlucky for Cork

Shares Gain Ground Lost

FROM OUR LONDON FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT

As few bargains were found on the stock markets, values quickly recovered the little ground lost on Monday. At the close yesterday, store shares were quite prominent, with Marks and Spencer Ordinary at 64s. 9d., and Woolworth Ordinary at 64s. 6d.

Courtaulds Ordinary at 56s. 3d., and British Celanese Ordinary at 31s. 6d., made progress. Gas, Light and Coke Ordinary rallied a few pence to 21s. 3d., while there were buyers for amusement shares, where sellers predominated on the previous day. It will be noticed that the old favourites were once again prominent.

An interesting development was a recovery in Rand Gold shares under the lead of Blyvoor 10/- shares at 4 11/16, and West Wits at 10 1/16. It was stated yesterday that there was better support for the Rand issues than for quite a time. Some of the oil shares were also supported, including Canadian Eagle Common at 13/6. The trend generally was far more satisfactory than on Monday.

British Funds were a strong market, while a few Argentine Railway prior charges scored small gains, but little interest could be stimulated in Home Railway Junior stocks. French Railway sterling bonds turned harder after their recent reaction, while there was a marking up of Far Eastern Bank shares.

BIG MERGER

Details of the proposed merger of the Leeds Permanent Building Society with the Woolwich Equitable Building Society will be submitted to the members of both societies at meetings to be held on July 5th and 6th. It is proposed that the merger shall be called the British Building Society. It is hoped at a later stage to include both the Liverpool Investment Buildings Society, with assets of £4,142,536, and the Dunfermline Building Society, the second largest society in Scotland, with assets of £1,857,934. Total assets of the two societies will amount to £80,360,743.

Guinness Units in Request

THERE was not much life about markets on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, but despite the prevailing quietness prices held up well and even inclined higher in places. Exceptionally, Home Government Funds encountered selling pressure, and marked further losses. The junior stocks of Great Southern Rails were favoured, and made some headway.

The National Loans made a dull showing. The Second Loan gave way to 114, the Fourth to 107, and 4 p.c. Conversion Loan to 110. The National Security Loan shaded off to 105¾, but 3½ p.c. War Loan hardened to 103 11/16. Idle conditions prevailed in Banks.

There was strong buying of Guinness units up to 133/6, an advance of 1/- on the day. Cairnes Ord. gained 1/- at 21/-, and Power Ord. held 16/-.

Great Southern Ord. were raised to 49¾ and the Pref. to 50, but the Guar. declined to 69¾ and the Deb. to 94¼. Dublin Transport issues held up well.

Draperies inclined easier, with Crowe Wilson Pref. 22/9 and McBirney Pref. 16/6. Assoc. Properties Pref. hardened to 26/3, but Clondalkin Paper Ord. dipped to 6/7½. Alex. Thom Deb. firmed up to 102, and Independent Pref. to 36/3. The rest of the Irish Industrial list made a steady showing.

Textiles were in demand, and Coats Ord. rose to 48/4½, while Courtaulds jumped 1/1½ to 56/1½. Bleachers Ord. quoted 11/3. Imperial Tobacco Ord. advanced 1/- to 161/-, and Imperial Chemical Ord. added pence at 40/4½. Card Clothing Ord. quoted 14/6 and Consett Iron Ord. 9/6.

WALL STREET CLOSES IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Tuesday.—The Stock Exchange opened firm and active. Selling was offset by a continued strong demand for utilities, specialities and high grade Industrials. Large blocks of low and medium priced issues appeared on the ticker tape

The leaders retreated somewhat from the seven-year high levels established yesterday, but there were numerous firm spots among Coppers, Utilities, Amusements, Farm Equipments and specialities. The decline chiefly affected Steels, Motors, Rubbers and Aircrafts. Profit-taking tapered off in the late proceedings and the market finished irregular. The turnover of 1,619,000 shares comprised 961 issues, of which 357 advanced, 379 declined and 225 remained unchanged.

COMPANY NEWS

Cam and Motor.—Final 8 p.c., making 14 per cent (same).

Powell Duffryn.—Final 6½ p.c., which brings the total for the year up to 8 per cent. This is the first payment by the amalgamated concern.

DENIALS AT G.S.R. TRIBUNAL

Mr. O'Mahony—You think it was sent by heaven?—Yes, I do.

Mr. M. W. O'Reilly, Managing Director of the New Ireland Assurance Company, in reply to Judge Barra O Briain, said there was no member of the Government a member of the Board since 1932, when the present Minister for Agriculture, Dr. J. Ryan, was a member of the Board. In 1943 the company, between August and November, purchased £25,000 nominal of G.S.R. Debenture stock, and between June and July £5,000 4 per cent. Guaranteed Preference.

Mr. O'Reilly was then questioned concerning a letter received from Messrs. Tunney, stockbrokers, on June 21st, 1943. Referring to the second paragraph, Judge O Briain quoted: "There are, as you are doubtless aware, many conflicting opinions as to the future of Irish railways. . . . There is a lack of interest on the part of the investing public pending the publication of the Government scheme. . . ." Judge O Briain asked—Did anything in that paragraph surprise you?

Witness—No, not exactly. We had followed the course of the evidence at the Tribunal in 1939, and were of the opinion that the railways were an important service that could not be let down.

Was it news to you that there was a Government scheme arranged?—It was a surprise there was a Government scheme actually arranged, but it was not news to me that it was actually contemplated.

Did this letter indicate inside information that could not be gleaned by the members of the public without a regular disclosure?—No.

After quoting further extracts from the letter, Judge O Briain said that Mr. Tunney had stated that the letter was not inspired, and that it was written on the material available.

Judge O Briain (to the witness)—When your Board came to the decision to buy were you relying entirely on Mr. Tunney's advice or had you anything in addition?—Very largely on Mr. Tunney's advice, and on the fact that the Tribunal had more or less outlined some such course.

Did you personally purchase any G.S.R. stocks?—I did not at any time.

Apart from the matters which you have mentioned, had you any information regarding the scheme?—No.

GOT NO TIPS

Replying to further questions, Mr. O'Reilly said that Dr. Ryan had taken no part in the management of the company since 1932. The witness had been in the Volunteers, and had met Mr. Reynolds. During 1943 he received no information from Mr. Reynolds; he never even discussed railways with him. The chairman of the company was related to Dr. Ryan and Mr. S. T. O'Kelly and the leader of the Opposition, General Mulcahy, but no information had been received from any of them.

Mr. O'Mahony—You were associated with the Myles the Slasher campaign to bring the O'Reillys back to their ancient glory?—It was an effort of mine.

Did you ever discuss railway matters with Mr. D. McCullough, or did ever rumours get to him that he passed on to you?—Not that I recall.

Replying to the Tribunal, Mr. O'Reilly said he had been at the Gresham Hotel, adding: "I am afraid I had not the good fortune, however, to meet the people with the tips."

Judge Davitt—Did anybody purchase G.S.R. stock on your behalf?—No.

Any of your relatives?—No, I am sorry to say.

Mr. R. C. Ferguson, Secretary, Department of Industry and Commerce, said he received the Minister's minutes with Mr. Reynolds on Saturday, February 27th, and that was passed on immediately, he would say, to Mr. Flynn a day or two afterwards.

Chairman—Would the memorandum remain in your office over the week-end?—That would depend. I would think it unlikely. The routine would be that a document of that kind would be sent out by hand by my private secretary, and, therefore, reach him on Monday morning.

Where would it be from Saturday until Monday?—If it would be sent in that way, I would say it would be in Mr. Flynn's possession. If it was kept in my office, it would be on my tray and would have been locked up

Asked if he could recollect whether he had any discussion with any person about the scheme between March 1st and the receipt of Mr. O'Brien's memorandum dated May 6th, Mr. Ferguson said he had no note or memory of any conversation.

Asked if he heard any rumours in the city during the summer, he said that he heard vague talk, but, owing to his position, he very carefully abstained from it. Most of the talk was ill-informed.

Replying to Mr. O'Mahony, the witness said that he did not know if provision for the new capital had been made in the 10 millions scheme.

OTHER WITNESSES

Mr. T. J. Flynn, Department of Industry and Commerce, recalled, said that he had no talks with Mr. John O'Brien. What information Mr. O'Brien required would be in the office.

Chairman—Am I right in thinking that the Minister was contemplating in his mind that, say, ten million pounds should be utilised to acquire the existing capital of the two companies?—It certainly looked like that, but I don't think anybody was quite clear about it at the time.

Do you recollect having an interview with the Minister and Mr. Ferguson on October 8th?—Yes.

That was after Mr. Reynolds had brought you the circular letter in draft about the scheme?—Yes.

You had also an interview with Finance?—Yes.

At that interview was it clear to your mind that Finance were content with the general outline?—Generally, yes.

Do you recollect a telephone conversation with Mr. McElligott in which you asked him to return it, and he asked you to give him until morning?—Yes.

When did that take place?—On the morning of the 11th.

Did you know on Monday morning that he had approved?—He did not give his final word.

Mr. O'Mahony—At any stage of the proceedings was there a question of giving a Government guarantee with every class of stocks, including ordinary shareholders?—I don't think so.

There could be no truth in the suggestion that this leakage was deliberately inspired to encourage the investing public in a company which had been going down hill?—No.

Mr. H. G. Boardman, Secretary, G.S.R., produced a statement prepared for the Tribunal showing the proportion of the various stocks of the company not dealt with in any way during the material period in 1943. The total number of ordinary stockholders was 9,164 and the amount of ordinary capital £777,927. The object of the return, he said, was to try to ascertain how many people out of the various classes of holders had dealt with stock. In an endeavour to search them out from the accounts he did it by eliminating from the total number of accounts those people who had not dealt in stocks. Out of 9,164 ordinary stockholders, 8,586 did not deal with their stock in 1943. Out of 5,442 preference stockholders, 4,926 did not deal with their stocks. Out of 3,986 guaranteed preference stockholders, 3,460 did not deal with stock, and out of 6,119 debenture holders, 5,317 did not deal with stock. Over 90 per cent. of the holders of stock and debenture did not deal with their stock during the year—90 per cent. in number and 84 per cent. in value.

The next public sitting of the Tribunal will be held to-morrow.

Candle Rationing

Following a special meeting of the Irish Retail Traders' Protection Association yesterday in Jurys Hotel, a deputation waited on the Ministry of Supplies and made a strong case for the immediate rationing of candles. The chairman stated later that an assurance had been given that the representations made would be considered in the light of the facts submitted and of the supplies available.

The name of the speaker at Monday's meeting of the Rotary Club as stated in yesterday's Irish Times should have read Mr. Vincent McAllister, of Messrs. Smithwick and Co.

£500,000 DRIVE

Over six months have elapsed since this Appeal was launched, and although the results have been very gratifying the total falls far short of the target aimed at, which is the amount required to carry out the Society's Programme.

May we ask those who have not yet responded to send in their Subscriptions, and to subscribe as generously as their means permit?

In publishing below the amounts received from the various counties we wish to place on record our appreciation of the splendid work done by our various branches, and to ask them to redouble their efforts and so shorten the time necessary to reach the £500,000 figure.

Total sums received from the various Counties up to the 15/6/44, including receipts from "Irish Times" Red Cross Fund.

NOTICE TO CEMENT DISTRIBUTORS AND MERCHANTS.

Attention is directed to the fact that under Emergency Powers (Cement) Order, 1944, every person who carries on the business of a cement distributor or merchant is required to be registered in the register of cement merchants in the Department of Industry and Commerce. A number of distributors and merchants have not applied for registration up to the present, and such distributors and merchants should make immediate application for registration. In this connection attention is drawn to the fact that on and after the 26th June, 1944, no person may carry on the business of a cement distributor or merchant unless he is registered.

Under Emergency Powers (Cement) Order, 1944, each distributor and merchant is required to furnish to the Secretary, Department of Industry and Commerce, Kildare street, Dublin, a return of the quantity of cement in his possession on the 10th June, 1944. Certain distributors and merchants who have not furnished the required information should do so immediately. Distributors and merchants who fail to furnish the requisite returns, or who furnish incorrect returns, render themselves liable to prosecution.

It should be noted that it is illegal to purchase or sell cement on and after the 12th June, 1944, except under permit.

WAR TO THE KNIFE

Progress by the American forces in the Cherbourg Peninsula during the last twenty-four hours might be described justly as spectacular. As we write, the important centre of Valognes, some twelve miles south-east of the port of Cherbourg, has been captured. The town of Montebourg, which was the scene of embittered fighting for several days, also has fallen into Allied hands; and General Omar Bradley's advanced patrols were stated last night to have reached the village of St. Martin, only four miles to the south-east of the great French port. It would seem as if Marshal Rommel has decided not to dissipate his limited forces in a series of minor rearguard actions, but rather to withdraw them as quickly as possible towards Cherbourg, in order to be able to defend the port with the maximum strength. Cherbourg is an exceedingly strong place. There are three principal fortified areas. The first consists of the coastal defences, which probably face towards the north, and have been constructed with a view to the port's defence against a possible attack from the sea. Then there is an inner defence zone a few miles inland, facing south; and finally, some six miles from the town itself, there is a semi-circular outer line of defences stretching from sea to sea. According to the German reports, the Allies already have reached the fortified approaches to Cherbourg, which is being attacked violently from land, from sea, and from the air. These reports declare that General Montgomery has committed himself to an "all-out drive" for Cherbourg, and indicate that the German High Command is expecting the Allies to make fresh landings somewhere near the tip of the peninsula. The strength of Marshal Rommel's defending forces is unknown. Allied bulletins announce that the elements of three German divisions have been identified. There is a general belief that the Marshal has anything from 25,000 to 40,000 picked troops under his command. All that is reasonably certain is that the Germans will sell Cherbourg dearly. They realise its immense value to the British and Americans, and they will do everything in their power to deny its possession to their opponents.

The position along the British sector of the Normandy beach-head is more or less static. Canadian troops have captured various strongly-held points along the perimeter in the neighbourhood of Caen, and some of their official reporters express the view that this town already may have been evacuated by the main body of its German defenders. The hotly-contested position at Tilly is said to have fallen definitely into British hands; but for the moment the principal initiative seems to rest with the Americans. Most of the detailed news concerning the course of events in Normandy is coming at present from German sources. Berlin still insists that General Montgomery has not yet deployed more than a fraction of the forces which have been placed at his disposal. Evidently, the Germans believe that the real battle of Normandy will not begin in earnest until the fate of Cherbourg shall have been decided. They also aver that in North Africa the British have no fewer than sixteen divisions in readiness for an attack on the Mediterranean coast of France. Whether or not the invasion of Normandy represents the Allies' final effort to reduce the European fortress is a moot point. From the outset, Allied spokesmen have been deliberately vague in this respect. Their object has been to keep the Germans guessing; and, so far, they would seem to have succeeded. In a speech on Monday, Mr. Winston Churchill said that more than a million men might be involved in the fighting on the French mainland—truly a chastening and terrifying prognosis. It is quite clear that hitherto all the fighting in Normandy has been only in the nature of preliminary skirmishing. Each side has been taking the other's measure, and has been feeling its way. Important as the fate of Cherbourg may be, the campaign on the peninsula, after all, is only a "side-show." Paris is the Allies' real objective. No man can foretell what this unprecedented adventure has yet to cost in human life. Already casualties have been on a scale which recalls the darkest days of the last war in France. Unhappily, there can be no doubt that they will increase in appalling progression as the campaign develops. The war has become a struggle à outrance. The garden of Normandy is the ante-chamber to Armageddon.

Water Supplies

One item of news in our columns to-day will be welcome to the citizens of Dublin and its neighbourhood. While supplies of light and power and fuel are the victim of drastic rationing restrictions, and transport troubles multiply, there is no need to worry about another branch of life's daily needs. In the middle of a period of the lowest rainfalls that have been known for half a century, the Dublin manufacturer and householder are able to enjoy plentiful supplies of water. To what, and to whom, are our thanks due for that merciful immunity? The answer is not far to seek. The present happy position is due, in the first instance, to the authors and designers of the Liffey hydro-electric scheme—to the imagination and skill of the late Sir John Griffiths and his collaborators, Dr. Laurence Kettle and Mr. Michael Moynihan, the late City Engineer of Dublin. Not so many years ago they seemed to be voices crying in the wilderness of industrial and municipal progress. To-day their names stand for a great and timely achievement. To the credit of members of the Corporation stands the fact that they had the vision and the courage, in face of factious opposition, to sanction an outlay of not less than a million pounds. To the present City Manager and City Engineer and their expert assistants stands the credit for determination to proceed with works of construction despite all the incalculable difficulties of war emergencies. Thus, in the all-too-familiar jargon of the battlefield, the strategist and the tactician played their appropriate parts in the work of harnessing the forces of nature to the civic chariot of Greater Dublin. What lessons can be drawn from such a union of professional skill with the driving force of civic reformers? Is Poulaphouca the only point at which natural resources have lain untapped and unused? Are there not other points at which water supplies could be impounded and distributed to other towns and rural areas? Is there not now an immediate opportunity to extend considerably the area of supplies from Poulaphouca—which are estimated at a maximum of 20 millions of gallons daily? If six millions of gallons, added to reduced supplies from Roundwood and Bohernabreena, are sufficient to meet present emergency needs, why should not a considerable proportion of the surplus 14 millions of gallons be distributed to the thirsty villages and farmlands of North County Dublin, Kildare and Meath?

When adequate allowance has been made for the city's growth of population and more liberal use of water, the combined outputs, of about 40 millions daily, from Poulaphouca, Roundwood and Bohernabreena will considerably exceed the needs of the city and its suburbs. Why, we ask, should not Dublin be ready to share its good fortune with its less fortunate neighbours? If we take a wider view of needs and possibilities as they affect areas more remote from the metropolis, the question arises whether satisfactory conditions can be attained under the present system in which scores of local urban authorities make isolated provisions for their own supplies, in complete indifference to the needs of their surrounding rural areas. To advocate a country-wide water "grid" would be, as we fear, a counsel of perfection. What does seem to be immediately possible is the constitution of "regional" water boards to cater for the needs of contiguous town and county areas. Why should not the first step in that direction be the constitution of a Metropolitan Water Board, charged to conserve and distribute supplies from Poulaphouca and Roundwood over the widest possible area? The Government and organised farming interests have come to realise that piped water services, together with supplies of electricity, are necessary adjuncts to systems of progressive agriculture. To that end a necessary step is the unification of water services. The authors of the Griffiths-Kettle-Moynihan scheme have laid the foundations on which to develop regional systems of supply and distribution.

CHURCH ASSOCIATION

A meeting of the Irish Church Association will be held on Friday next, June 23rd, after supper in the St. Andrew's Hotel, Exchequer st., Dublin, at 6.30 p.m. A discussion on "The Place of Propaganda in the Work of the Church" will be opened by Mr. A. G. Gray.

A short devotional Service will be held in St. Ann's Church at 5.30 p.m., when the preacher will be the Rector of St. George's, the Rev. R. J. Kerr, M.A. Those intending to be present at supper are asked to communicate with the hon. secretary, the Rev. W. H. Coulter, St. Philip's Rectory, Palmerston rd., Rathmines, Dublin.

SERIOUS HANDICAP IN T.B. TREATMENT

THE need for more beds for tuberculosis patients was urged by Dr. T. G. Moorhead when he spoke at the annual meeting of the Royal National Hospital for Consumption for Ireland (Newcastle Sanatorium), held yesterday at 13 South Frederick street, Dublin.

Now that early diagnosis of the disease was being made, the trouble lay not with the doctors, but with the shortage of beds, continued Dr. Moorhead. It was essential that they should urge the Department of Local Government to make provision for proper sewage and drainage arrangements at the sanatorium, in order that they might be able to take advantage of an offer by the Irish Red Cross Society. The fact that they had had 110 waiting patients, and that another sanatorium had 300, showed that it was essential that more beds be available. The average period on the waiting list was about two months. During that time a great deal of extension of the disease took place if the patient was in unfavourable conditions. Taken early, with modern treatment, the patient stood a fair chance of complete recovery.

WAITING LIST

An investigation of the period of the patients' stay in hospital showed that 22 per cent. of those admitted in 1937 and 27 per cent. admitted in 1938 were alive and well, in sound health, and able to do ordinary work. The position was that one in five of these patients was quite well after five years in the sanatorium. These figures were neither impressive nor satisfactory. But he thought that they could be very much improved if they could only get the patients at an earlier date. There were 231 patients on the waiting list last year; out of that figure 126, or 50 per cent., had been admitted when they were quite seriously ill, with extensive trouble in the lungs. When the sanatorium had been founded 50 years ago it had been emphatically stated that it was intended for patients in the early stages of the disease.

"The vicious circle" of the waiting list was explained by Dr. E. T. Freeman, who said that it was the success of their treatment that had increased the waiting list, as the treatment had necessitated longer residence in the sanatorium. There was increased discovery of patients now owing to the awareness of the medical profession and of the public themselves, who were on the watch for early symptoms. He suggested a solution which, while not ideal, afforded a solution for the present. More patients could be treated in sanatoria for a short period, as it was now possible for these patients to be sent home for further treatment by the local doctors.

RED CROSS OFFER

The Chairman, Captain A. Gordon Ferrier, said that during the year they had been putting forward to the Department of Local Government and Public Health and the Hospitals' Commission several schemes, which included a new sewage disposal system, as their system was totally inadequate; a nurses' home, which was very essential; a new water main, with extra piping for fire fighting, and a new X-ray plant and dark room. These schemes were receiving favourable consideration from the authorities concerned.

In January they had an invitation to meet the Committee of the Irish Red Cross Society Anti-T.B. Section, to discuss the question of extra temporary bed accommodation, which they were anxious to provide. Unfortunately, they had to point out that their sewage disposal system was so inadequate that they could not accept that generous offer until a new system was installed. A new system was under consideration by the Department and the Hospitals' Commission, however, and the Committee hoped this difficulty would soon be overcome, when they would be very glad to re-open the question of extra bed accommodation and to give any help they could in furthering the scheme.

Major H. E. de Courcy Wheeler referred to the "official red tape" which prevented the enlargement of present accommodation in order to increase the nursing staff. On a letter to the Minister for Local Government asking for this permission had been built up a vast superstructure of departmental correspondence. But the building in question was still only a scrap of paper. Without official approval no action could be taken, without the penalty of stoppage of all grants from the Hospital Trust Funds, although it was the public who contributed these funds for the very purpose for which these grants should be made.

"ACTIVE STEPS TO COPE WITH V.D."

The problem of the incidence of venereal disease is being "carefully considered," Dr. WARD, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Local Government, stated in the Dail yesterday.

During the debate on the vote for the Department of Local Government and Public Health, Mr. J. HUGHES (F.G., Carlow-Kildare) had referred to the increase in the incidence of the disease, and said that he believed it was increasing in the country. He asked was the increase so serious and alarming that it might be necessary to quarantine some of the people coming back from abroad.

Mr. R. ANTHONY (Ind., Cork) asked: "Are any active steps being taken to cope with the spread of V. D.?"

Mr. SEAN MacENTEE (Minister for Local Government and Public Health)—Yes.

Mr. ANTHONY — We cannot hold up our hands and do nothing. Are adequate steps being taken to make it a notifiable disease?

Mr. MacENTEE—I think the deputy had better wait.

Mr. ANTHONY—I am not satisfied.

Dr. WARD — The problem is being carefully considered.

Mr. HUGHES—Is the Minister dealing with people coming back to the country as far as that is concerned?

Dr. WARD—We are dealing with every possible aspect of it.

At Stormont, yesterday, Mr. W. Lowry, Minister of Home Affairs, said that the number of prosecutions in Northern Ireland against women under 21 for offences against public morals during the four years of war was 241, against 21 for the four years preceding the war.

I GIVE below a few things I have collected from time to time. I say "things" because I can't quite think what they should be called. I can think of what people who use them should be called. (Gropes in pocket, produces pencil stub and filthy envelope and writes down word; shows word; takes back envelope, prefixes epithetical other word and exhibits whole; frowns, scribbles heavily over both words, pulls Radio Eireann cheque for 10/6 from envelope and hands silently to barman). Here they are. English translations on the left:

Nose	Proboscis; nasal appendage.
Dance	Trip the light fantastic.
Moustache	Hirsute appendage.
Beard	Foliage; vegetation.
Bicycle	Trusty steed; Iron steed.
Potato	Humble tuber.
Egg	Henfruit.
Watch	Gold watch and chain.
Christmas	The festive season.
Drink	Stimulant; stottle about.
Eat	Partake of a repast.
Oyster	Succulent bivalve.
Church	Sacred edifice.
Letter	Epistle.
Piece of writing	Literary effort; literary effusion.

You see? Terrible. There are many others and I will be glad if you will write and tell me of any that occur to you (of all people). You remember, by the way, how I showed a few weeks ago that Henry Fielding was imitating me in his day and making quite a good job of it. One may draw attention here to James Russell Lowell, a funny American gentleman who flourished about a century ago. He too thought fit to record a few similar locutions, though the tone of his examples are more pompous than 'facetious'. The following are from "The Biglow Papers":

Was hanged	Was launched into eternity.
When the halter was put round his neck	When the fatal noose was adjusted about the neck of the unfortunate victim of his own unbridled passions.
A great crowd came to see	A vast concourse was assembled to witness.
Great fire	Disastrous conflagration.
House burned	Edifice consumed.
The fire was got under	The progress of the devouring element was arrested.
Man fell	Individual was precipitated.
A horse and wagon ran against	A valuable horse attached to a vehicle driven by J. S. in the employment of J. B. collided with.
The frightened horse	The infuriated animal.
A bystander advised	One of those omnipresent characters who, as if in pursuance of some previous arrangement, are certain to be encountered in the vicinity when an accident occurs, ventured the suggestion . . .
I shall say a few words	I shall, with your permission, beg leave to offer some brief observations.

I think that is all we have time for to-day. It is getting late—time you and I were standing in some queue. (Produces envelope and pencil again and reinforces obliteration. Sighs). Well, bye bye.

EIGHTH ARMY MEN AT THE VATICAN

British soldiers acclaimed the Pope yesterday morning at an audience granted to men of the Eighth Army, states Reuter's Special Correspondent, in a telegram from Rome last night.

Addressing them in English, the Pope recalled "the pleasant days he had had the privilege to spend in the great capital of the British Empire."

The Pope declared that supreme, unfading glory had been shed on England by the British saints, Edward the Confessor, Thomas à Becket, John Fisher and Thomas More.

"We beg grace for you through the intercession of these loyal and saintly sons of Mother Church and of your beloved England. We affectionately bless you and all your dear ones at home."

Many men of the Eighth Army had previously attended Mass at the great church of Santa Maria degli Angeli, which is part of the ancient baths of Diocletian, reconstructed by Michael Angelo.

MINISTER TO BRING IN NEW BOOK CENSORSHIP BILL

SAYING he understood that it was the Government's intention to legislate on the matter of Censorship and to embody the principle of appeal in such legislation, Sir John Keane, in the Senate yesterday, asked for leave to withdraw unconditionally the Censorship of Publications (Amendment) Bill.

Mr. G. Boland, Minister for Justice, said that he had always found the Censorship position unsatisfactory, and added that he thought the Minister for Justice was not the right person to ban publications.

On the second stage of the Censorship of Publications (Amendment) Bill, 1944, Sir JOHN KEANE said that since the bill had been introduced statements had appeared in the Press, and he thought that one of them had come from the Government Information Bureau—to the effect that the Government proposed to legislate on the matter and to embody the principle of appeal in such legislation.

He asked the permission of the House to withdraw the bill until they saw what form the Government legislation would take.

The MINISTER FOR JUSTICE said that if the Senate wanted him to make a statement he would do so.

Professor MICHAEL HAYES said that the Senate should not impose restrictions on its members. No ruling should be made to restrict the Senate's right to have a statement.

The MINISTER said that he had informed the Censorship Board that he intended to oppose the bill before the Senate and that he intended to bring in an amending bill. Since he became Minister for Justice he had found the position unsatisfactory.

"I do not think," he said, "that it is right that the Minister for Justice should be the person to ban publications. That is my personal view. I have always banned books with reluctance. I felt that first of all I should have read every book I banned." The Minister added that he intended to bring in a bill.

Leave was given to withdraw the bill, and the Senate adjourned indefinitely.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Who Began It?

WHEN I started talking blithely the other day about the origin of the Shannon Scheme, little did I think that I was about to bring a hornet's nest buzzing around my ears. I began by giving the credit to Mr. McGilligan, formerly Minister for Industry and Commerce, only to get my knuckles sharply rapped by a whole contingent of correspondents, headed by Mr. Alec. McCabe, who told me very politely that I did not know what I was talking about—the real author of the Shannon Scheme was not Mr. McGilligan, but Mr. Joe McGrath, who was Minister for Industry and Commerce, or words to that effect, in the early days of the Cosgrave Administration.

Having made the amende honorable, I thought I was finished with the matter. But not at all. It looks as if I were only starting. I now have had another batch of letters, telling me that I still do not know what I am talking about; and I am beginning to be sorry that I ever mentioned a project of such hotly disputed parentage.

Professor Magennis

My general botheration, however, is lightened, to some extent, by the fact that one of my latest correspondents is a man for whom I have a deep respect. I refer to Professor William Magennis, who formerly was a member of Dail Eireann, and now operates in the more cloistered atmosphere of the Senate.

Professor Magennis is a remarkable man. I got to know him fairly intimately through his association with the Contemporary Club, and also with the Dublin Literary Society. In the Contemporary he took the place, for a time at any rate, of its late presiding genius, Mr. Charlie Oldham; while in the Dublin Literary he was, and for all I know still is, monarch of all he surveyed.

In the old Dail days, before Fianna Fail decided to take the Oath, Professor Magennis, who sat for the National University, was a constant thorn in the side of Mr. Cosgrave's Government. He was an Independent, if there ever was one, occupying in those days—although his views were diametrically different—a place in Leinster House similar to that held at present by Mr. James M. Dillon. He was the only man in the Dail who was even remotely in the same class as Kevin O'Higgins as a debater; and many a classic encounter there was between them.

Poor O'Higgins always referred to his formidable opponent as "the Deputy Professor," and I well remember the dramatic gestures of the latter as he would point the finger of withering scorn at the Government front bench, from which he almost invariably averted his head when he was attacking Ministers; and the deep rumble of his sonorous periods was a joy to hear.

The Facts

All this is by way of preface. I now must get on with Professor Magennis's letter. The style is unmistakable.

"In the eyes of honorable men," he writes, "Nichevo's credit is much enhanced by the readiness of his withdrawal of erroneous history at the bidding of Mr. Alec McCabe. Unhappily the correction needs to be corrected somewhat. While it is true that Mr. Joseph McGrath was Minister for Industry and Commerce at the time the Shannon scheme was actually initiated, and took an active part in control of the work at Ardnacrusha later, he had no part whatever in the original discussion of the project.

"When the plan to harness the Shannon was first broached, 'the Minister himself' (to quote Deputy Darrell Figgis) 'was concerned with important military duties at Portobello,' and Deputy Whelehan, Assistant Minister, took his place at the official conference, whereat President Cosgrave discussed it with the present writer, a Dail deputy, who introduced Dr. McLaughlin and advocated the adoption of his proposals.

"The Assistant Minister was favourably impressed; and a month or so later Dr. McLaughlin and Mr. Joseph McGrath met in conference the Minister for Finance and the Attorney-General.

"For more light," the Professor concludes, "recourse may be had to President Cosgrave's speech reported in Dail Eireann official reports, Vol. X, Col. 2015; and to Col. 1999, also in the same volume—a speech by the present writer. Regard for accuracy-in-history has prompted this addition to my friend's, Mr. McCabe's, contribution:

'My taste exact for faultless fact
Amounts to a disease.'"

So that's that. Knowing my friend, the Deputy Professor, I repeat that that's that; and that is that, finally and irrevocably, as unwanted monarchs are wont to say when they throw up their jobs.

I should just hate to attempt to argue with Professor Magennis on any question involving facts; for almost inevitably he would be right and I would be wrong. So now you know how the Shannon scheme began. Whether it ever ought to have begun—a point on which I have received a flood of sarcastic correspondence—is quite another matter!

The Senate Election

Mention of the Professor reminds me that the voting papers for the Senate election have been sent out to the voters of both universities. In Trinity there are five candidates for three seats. All the sitting members are going forward again; and they are being challenged by Professor Joseph Johnston, a former representative of the university, who is an expert on economics—and, by the way, a practical farmer—and Mr. Eoin O'Mahony, familiarly, if irreverently, known as "The Pope," a former Auditor of the Historical Society, who is playing a leading part in the examination of witnesses before the G.S.R. Stocks Tribunal.

Of the sitting members, Mr. Kingsmill Moore, who made his first appearance in the Senate after the last election, already has made quite a name for himself in Leinster House; and I have little doubt that he will retain his seat without difficulty. Dr. Rowlette, who has represented the university in both Dail and Senate for many years, again will be assured of the medical vote.

Personally, I have a decided weakness for the third member, Professor W. R. Fearon. I met him first in the month of October, 1911, when he and I, shivering entrants to T.C.D., had breakfast with our respective tutors on a cold wintry morning. I still remember the delicious Sally Lunn about which we compared notes afterwards. A third member of the young entry on that historic occasion was Mr. Basil (Barney) McGuckin, K.C., who, coming from that remarkable school run by Dom Sweetman, near Gorey, was a pupil, like myself, of the late Dr. E. J. Gwynn.

Dr. Fearon took science as a career (I have an idea that he also is a medical doctor) and went to Cambridge afterwards, where he did brilliantly as a bio-chemist. He now is Professor of Bio-Chemistry in the University; but he has decided literary tastes, and is one of the best and wittiest after-dinner speakers in Ireland.

The "National"

In the "National," youth is knocking imperiously at the door. The three sitting members are Mrs. Helen Concannon, Surgeon H. L. Barneville and Professor Michael Tierney, a truly formidable trio. But that does not deter my young poet friend, Donagh MacDonagh, from trying his luck again. He was only narrowly defeated on the last occasion.

Mr. MacDonagh is one of eight aspiring candidates who are contesting the election in the National against the sitting members. Two other women, in the persons of Professor Agnes O'Farrelly and Miss Florence Quirke, have been nominated. Mr. M. J. Ryan, K.C. formerly a member of the staff of the T.C.D. Law School, is another candidate, and yet another is Mr. Carroll O'Daly, now at the bar, who, if my memory serves me, acted for some years as Irish Editor of the Irish Press. Eleven candidates for three seats will ensure a bright election at Earlsfort terrace.

I had almost forgotten that our old friend, Mr. O'Mahony, is going forward for the National, as well as for Trinity. He certainly is catholic in his Senatorial ambitions!

GERMANY'S 1940 PLAN TO INVADE BRITAIN

Mr. Churchill, in the House of Commons yesterday, after saying that there was nothing which he could "usefully add" to Mr. Attlee's reply to a request for information on July 29th last, told Major Vyvyan Adams (C., Leeds W.) that the Germans did set in motion a seaborne invasion to the extent of making "very heavy" concentrations of troops and ships.

Major Adams — Did any of the shipping ever emerge from ports across the Channel?

Mr. Churchill—Not to my belief. A great deal of it was sunk in the ports and then they changed their minds.

Mr. Attlee last July stated that the Germans' preparations for invasion were frustrated by the Royal Air Force, and the official booklet, Bomber Command, describes how a formidable collection of barges in "invasion ports" from the North of Holland to the South of France were bombed in 536 attacks from June, 1940, to May, 1941.

News in Brief

Street Musician Jailed — District Justice Mangan, in Dublin, yesterday, sentenced a street musician to 14 days' imprisonment for begging.

Boatman Drowned — A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday, at Letterkenny, on Patrick Toye (47), widower, a Rathmullen boatman, whose body was recovered from Lough Swilly, where he disappeared from a small boat while returning from Fahan.

Knife Assault—For assaulting the superintendent of St. Vincent de Paul night shelter, James Hayes (55), of no fixed address, stated to be a native of Tipperary, was sent to jail for two months, in Dublin District Court, yesterday. It was stated that a knife was used in the attack and that the superintendent's hand was cut.

Clothes Dealer Charged — In the Dublin Circuit Criminal Court, yesterday, before Judge Wyse Power, Margaret Foran, dealer in second-hand clothes, 35 Patrick street, pleaded not guilty to charges of having received clothing and other articles to the value of £57, in September and October, 1943. The case will be resumed to-day.

£500 BAIL ESTREATED

At Dublin District Court yesterday District Justice Mangan made an order estreating the personal bail of £500, entered into by Charles Brocklebank, company director, Fownes street, Dublin, who failed to answer to his bail on May 23rd.

Brocklebank had been remanded on a charge of conspiring with Christopher H. Williams and Mrs. M. Moloney to procure an abortion.

Subsequently the hearing of the charge against Brocklebank was proceeded with in camera, and he was returned for trial to the Circuit Criminal Court in custody.
